

To Whom It May Concern,

From reading and researching numerous articles on the PC1 Plan, I have noted several very important points.

Some of the scientific research appears incorrect, namely determining a Nitrogen Reference Point (NRP), and where some of these contaminants originate from. Instead of investigating and addressing major sources of contamination, a blanket approach seems to be being applied.

This proposed legislation is locking farmers into a system that does not allow for growth or flexibility. The added costs involved for the farmer, as in extensive fencing, would be crippling to them, and the wider community.

I'm all for having clean water, but what ever happened to asking a farmer to achieve a common sense goal over a number of years.

Yours faithfully
